

community is a group of people that have something in common, but each individual person is different.

1. we connected by holding hands and doing the same movements as one, but then showed our differences when each pair did their own thing for some of the counts.

When we held hand we and came into the circle we showed that we were together as one.

2. connect both small circles to form one and then as they move around in the circle a couple people fall out or leave the circle and have the large circle bring back those people. Representing how when people have a downfall in their life their community is there to pick them back up.
