

I think our group did a pretty good job at choreographing the piece, but after hearing the feedback from my classmates and teacher, I feel like we could edit it to make it better. For instance, we could add more counterpoint and pauses to emphasise certain points in the music and choreography. Adding more levels will also help create a bigger sense of depth and will add another layer of creativity to the dance. While we continue this process and keep adding on to our piece, we should keep using these themes and techniques to help deliver the message that we are trying to give.
