

DA-JW-I-24-T3d

I think Unsteady relates to the artistic statement because of our sense of community in the dance. We start out apart from each other, then unite by holding hands. One girl is in the middle alone and is "unsteady", swaying back and forth. The other girls catch her when she starts to fall, representing true friendship. We dance in unison, then lift a girl in the air. The lift represents the support of the community and we walk off together in groups.