

Book worm (May 2016)

Acrylic paint, pencil and canvas

I created this artwork, because my mother often calls me 'Book worm' in Japanese. In Japanese, book worm calls 'Hon-no-mushi'. And I like this word. Mushi means insect. So I drew a lot of insects and books.

The girl is maybe me, or not. I'm not sure. I don't want you guys think the girl is me. If I said it's me, the girl can be just only me, and it's boring. So I painted her skin looks whiter and her hair color looks brown.

I sketched with many insects pictures. And then painted. I didn't use any special techniques.

This artwork is challenge for me. I tried to learn how to paint on canvas and how to make variety of color and make shadow. I couldn't make good space on this artwork. Next time, I have to make any progress about it.
